

Bio Sheet - Buzz Covington

J.R. "Buzz" Covington is an internationally published and award-winning photographer who brings a wealth of travel experience and a unique perspective to his work. Buzz began photography as a hobby in junior high, which turned into a passion and a profession as an adult. During his worldwide travels in the military spanning 25 years, Buzz has seen and documented some amazing sights.

Buzz spent eight years flying aboard various electronic warfare aircraft in the Navy, and 17 years in the Army as an AH-64D Apache Longbow Instructor Pilot. Now retired from the military, he enjoys devoting the amount of time and effort to photography as a professional that the art deserves.

He has worked for the U.S. Olympic Committee (Team USA) in London and Sochi, the Combined Services Disabled Ski Team (UK), Reebok, One MR Apparel, and several other agencies. Buzz is currently the North American editor for HeliOps and HeliOps-Frontline magazines, and stays busy as a real estate photographer for BTW images. He is a member of the PPA, RPA, and the Washington Arts Club. Buzz lives with his family and two English Bulldogs in the Washington DC area.
